Welcome Screen

Annotations
1. Added "Getting Started" (in the German version: "Erste Schritte") in headline to support manual character.
2. "Navigation" replaced by "Introduction".
3. Shortened text replaced below headline.

Choose autonomous icon for "Introduction"
Persons and relations are handled as "Relatives" directly accessible from the side bar navigation. Here is where they can be added, edited, deleted etc..

Modified shape of "Help" element (formerly resembling the representation of a relative) to avoid being mistaken for a member of the family.

Added horizontal scrollbar for making larger family trees visible at a small screen resolution.

Tooltip help explaining the difference between views.

Increased height of family tree node to display first and last name along with relationship offset, font size (exception): 10 pt with possibility to enlargement with magnifying tool.

Magnifying tool sliding out on mouse over similar to "Views" above. Once an item is selected menu slides back itself.

Minimized layer incl. icon. Added "Back to my own family" text link in addition to icon.

Annotations

1. Tooltip help and default text to explain mood message functionality making the question mark symbol redundant.
2. Relationship, name of person, country and location summarized in one box and centered.
3. Picture frame and menu items moved upwards to make room for mood bubble and name box.
5. Renamed "Details" to "Personal Info" as in the Profile Center.

Annotations

1. Overall size and layout optimized to fit a 800x600 pixels screen.

2. Rename "Profile" to "Account" or similar, but more general.

3. Minimized menu items to save screen space and decrease perception overload. (Personal Info and Contact Details merged, Relations renamed to Relatives, Overview removed)

4. Re-organized form for better clarity

5. Option to add further contact details. Click on plus extends form, showing scrollbar if larger than 600 px.

Annotations

1. "Relations" renamed to " Relatives" to make access to one's contacts more obvious.

2. Re-arranged table and omitted 3 columns, i.e. "Birthdate", "Edit" and "Privacy Settings" which are bound to each person itself. Relatives can be sorted by name, relationship or country and location.

3. Each person is represented by its photo for better visual perception.

4. Clicking on the name or photo links to the person’s profile. The tooltip indicates the underlying action.

5. The relationship identifies the primary relationship. Adding more than one relationship per person is not possible, unless a person needs to be listed twice.

6. The activity, here "Delete", is placed right next to the relationship it refers to.

7. A new relative, that is relationship, can simply be added via the button link.

8. If checked, denied relationships and pending requests appear in the list - with the relationship indicated as "Pending", "Pending" changes to "Delete" (active) as soon as confirmed, or "Denied" if relationship has been denied.

9. New ingoing relationships (relatives) appear in the list as long as they have been confirmed or ignored.

Consider to integrate a virtual assistant (taskbot, lingubot) that allows people to pose questions to which in turn they get generated answers. It can help them finding relevant information by linking to the appropriate part in the tutorial.

In German version replace “Tutorial” by “Anleitung” to increase understanding.

Dialogue style to increase personification.

Option to directly type and send a message to the support.

Max. height up to 600 pixels.

Makeover of entire interface to be distinguishable from the Mini View.

Omitted “Support messages” since these relate to one's personal messages and will be most likely accessed from within the “Profile Center”. Also omitted “Help and Support” which linked to stories, but is redundant with the support messages, news and tutorials.

Adding a new relative made more prominent through button representation.

Overall height enlarged to 600 px, photo frame enlarged to 64 px x 64 px, box size to 128 px x 112 px and font size increased to 12 pt for better readability and visibility (cf. Profile Center - Relatives).

Omitted “Show deceased” since redundant here. Added option to show pending request and denied relationships. Most often chosen relatives are placed at the top.

Both, first and last name with relationship offset, allowing up to 15 characters per line.

Adding a new relative made more prominent through button representation.
Add Relative

You can enter the name of the person below.

1. Search terms can be input here.
2. Option to extend search by location, country etc.. Folding out if clicked.
3. Max. height up to 600 px.

Annotations
1. Change of concept: Adding a relative is only possible if s/he is registered as a member. A relationship request needs to be send to that person. Only if the person confirms the relationship it is established. This way everybody is responsible for their own profile and privacy settings.
   If a person can not be found e.g. because s/he is not yet registered as a member, s/he can be invited via e-mail etc., or if s/he deceased, one can add her/him as a member of one's family (person is added as deceased relative).
2. Search terms can be input here.
